

SMOOTH SAILING FOR SENATOR FAIRBANKS

Congressman Hitt's Name Was Withdrawn For Vice-President.

Immortal Incidents of the Republican National Convention Arouse Many.

GRAND OLD "JOE" CANNON PRESIDING TODAY

Chicago, June 22.—Without a disturbing element to impede smooth operation, the programme for the Republican National Convention is being carried out. An organization was perfected preparatory to the adoption of a platform and the making of nominations in the succeeding days of the convention. From the quiet, yet unmistakable enthusiasm provoked by Senator Fairbanks' arrival at the Coliseum, his nomination for vice-president is but little less assured than the nomination of Theodore Roosevelt for President.

The keynote to the convention of 1904 was sounded by Hon. Elihu Root in his speech as temporary chairman. His address was a review of the accomplishments of the present administration and a defense of Republican policies in general.

The incidents which are destined to live long after the demonstrations have been forgotten are Mr. Root's tributes to President McKinley. The temporary chairman spoke of the late president's administration of progress, his gentleness of character and those qualities so beloved by the nation, and in that connection saying feelingly:

"And with McKinley we remember Hanna."

A hush almost oppressive spread over the 7,000 or more persons present. The speaker had paused expectantly. As he started to resume the full force of the tie stretched between the two greatest of recent political heroes went home to the delegates. The applause started and in a sympathetic wave was carried to every part of the great hall. The demonstration was unlike any that had preceded it or that came after. An indefinable dignity was attached to the demonstration which seemed foreign to a political gathering.

The first speech at the convention was by Senator Scott, who informally presented to Chairman Payne, a beautiful gavel.

In the convention hall today there is one woman delegate who has the right to vote. She is Mrs. Charles A. Eldredge, of Colorado Springs, Colo., an alternate delegate whose principal was absent. Other women alternates present were Mrs. Owen Lefevre, of Colorado, Mrs. Susan West of Idaho, and Miss Jennie Nelson, of Utah, these states having woman suffrage. Senator Callom, of Illinois, this afternoon announced the withdrawal of Congressman Hitt from the vice presidential race. This means that Fairbanks will be nominated by acclamation.

The committee on rules and resolutions presented the platform. Much of it is devoted to a resume of what the Republican party has accomplished in the freeing of Cuba, the suppression of insurrection in the Philippines, the position of the route for the Isthmian Canal is dwelt upon at some length, and referring to the tariff the platform insists upon the maintenance of the principle of protection and therefore rates, duty should be re-adjusted only when conditions have so changed public interest demands alteration. But this work cannot be safely committed to any other hands than those of the Republican party. The upholding of the gold standard is declared to be a duty of the Republican party. Legislation which will encourage to build up American merchant marine is favored. A navy powerful enough to defend the country against any attack, to uphold the Monroe doctrine is declared essential. Civil service law practiced and peaceful settlement of international differences by arbitration are favored. The vigorous efforts of the administration to protect American citizens in foreign lands commended. Nominations will not be sent until 4 o'clock.

12:19 p. m.—The platform will be reported about 1 o'clock.

12:22 p. m.—Father Thomas E. Cox, of Chicago, leads in prayer.

12:35 p. m.—The convention was called to order by Temporary Chairman Root.

12:36 p. m.—Senator McCombs, chairman of the committee on credentials, reports that the committee unanimously concurs in the action of the national committee as to the Wisconsin contest. The convention adopts report of committee on credentials. 12:42 p. m.—Johnson, chairman of the committee on credentials, presents a report on permanent organization. Joseph G. Cannon, of Illinois, will be permanent chairman.

SPEAKER JOSEPH G. CANNON.

2:03 p. m.—Chairman Cannon just finished speaking.

CORRESPONDENTS COMPLAIN.

General Headquarters in the Field, via Seoul, June 2.—There has been much dissatisfaction among newspaper correspondents over their status with the Japanese army, resulting in several protests to the staff. Finally, a written statement of their grievances was presented by the entire body of correspondents here.

The statement complains of the censorship of telegrams at Seoul and at Nagasaki, which the headquarters censor had already approved. It also complains of the strict enforcement of the rules framed by the general staff at Tokio which prevent correspondents in the field from sending details of what Tokio correspondents are often permitted to describe. The statement further requests that some freedom be granted correspondents in the matter of moving about and observing the army and its operations.

Miss Hortense Hutcheson, of Russellville, Miss., arrived today from Murray for a brief visit to her aunt, Mrs. Mary Leigh.

The Indians clearly and without a doubt outclassed the Blue Birds yesterday afternoon at Wallace park when they took the second game from the visitors by hard hitting at opportune times, and although the game seemed Henderson's up to the eighth inning, the Indians pounded away and were cheered on to victory. Everybody worked in harmony and Freeman was given faultless support. The only two errors made were in the third inning when Henderson made her three scores and these errors were excusable.

ALICE LOSES AGAIN.
Cairo, Ill., June 22.—The home team won again yesterday.

HOPPERS STILL UNLUCKY.
Clarksville, Tenn., June 22.—The locals won again yesterday.

NOTES FROM THE BENCH.
Harley is hitting .336 and has just got his peppers on the sphere. Look out for the big slugger. He will certainly show some pitchers up this season. Last season he was one of the league's foremost hitters.

Sherman is hitting away above the 300 mark and is the best base runner, except Gilligan, in the league. The summary will show several high drives nipped by the visitors in the outfield, meaning that Paducah sluggers put the sphere far out in the field.

Crowder was hitting well yesterday but not first base on a double hit and was retired. Land's wing is something fierce, and it means sure death to any base runner attempting to steal on the Big Man.

Sunday the locals are preparing for a big excursion to Cairo. They will fight for the best two out of three games with the Egyptians and if they win them first, the fans will go down in a body. It is thought by the time the locals visit Cairo, Violet will be back at first and Harley will relieve McGill in the field. McGill is a sick man and really not able to play ball.

Dan O'Connor, who played third base for Paducah the first of last season and who later went to Jackson, Tenn., will be seen in a Kitty league uniform again soon with the Vincennes team. O'Connor is with the Notre Dame team and is hitting well this season.

"Red" Wilson, who was considered Paducah's "horse shoe" pitcher last season, will twirl for Henderson this afternoon, and the Indians will have a hard time beating Red. Wilson is undoubtedly the most "heady" pitcher in the league and knows five of Paducah's "horse shoe" pitchers, from what he has seen, thinks Gilligan is Paducah's most dangerous hitter.

Brady is ill and unable to be in the game, crippling Paducah's staff of pitchers. Gerard was billed to pitch yesterday but on account of not getting a fast felder to substitute for Sherman who would have gone to second or short, did not pitch yesterday. He will work in the box soon if Brady does not recover.

Thursday is another off day in the league and an attempt to have a double header here with Vincennes will be made. Vincennes owns Paducah a game at Vincennes and also one here and if the management of the teams agree to pay Shuster to umpire, and he says he will not unless paid extra, the games will be played. It is understood the Vincennes team is willing to have the games.

Vincennes and Hopkinsville will play here Sunday afternoon, it is stated.

TWO MONTHS

BEFORE THE PUBLIC LIBRARY WILL BE OPENED.

The grounds of the Carnegie Library are being filled, and bids for putting in concrete walks were advertised for today.

It is expected to get the walks in during July, but it will probably be two months before the library can be opened to the public.

Miss Marietta Street, a library organizer of Dixon, Ill., will arrive the first of August to instruct the librarian in her duties, and to get the library ready for the opening.

Unique Summer Resort

THE INSIDE INN AT THE WORLD'S FAIR AFFORDS UNEXCELLED ADVANTAGES FOR THE SOJOURNER DURING THE HOT MONTHS.

Costs Less Than Equally Good Accommodations Outside the Fair Grounds.

The biggest summer resort hotel in the United States is located at St. Louis, inside the world's fair grounds. Thousands of persons spend a month or so at the seashore or in two mountains during the heated term, at summer resorts hotels. This year those who are able to enjoy an extended season of "resorting" have something new to try. Seashore and mountain, after many seasons, pall upon one. But here is a chance to go summering in a new and wonderful way.

The Inside Inn accommodates 6,000 guests. It is inside the world's fair enclosure, and yet is so located that it has all the advantages of a home in the woods. The natural trees of Forest Park surround the Inside Inn. There are many acres of noble trees, with the handsome state buildings here and there, so that the hotel appears to be located in a select suburban section of a beautiful city. Being open to the south and situated on high ground, there is an unobstructed sweep of southern breezes. Far away from the dust and grime of the city, and yet within a few minutes' walk of the heart of the world's fair, this hotel offers greater inducements as a place of summer resort than any other hostelry in the world this season.

The Inn is far from the seashore, but it is so near the wonderful Cascade Gardens of the exposition that the roar of the leaping and dashing waters is audible. There is no beach and board walk, with band stand music; but there is the magnificent Festival Hall, with its world of famous orchestras and its ponderous pipe organ.

Guests at the Inside Inn have all the comforts of home while they are seeing the world's fair, and it is not to be doubted that a great many individuals, families and parties will do their summer resorting there this season.

PAINFUL INJURY

POSTMAN FRED ACKER CUTS ARM ON BROKEN GLASS.

Mr. Fred Acker, one of the letter carriers, cut a painful gash in his right arm this morning, on a broken pane of glass. Mr. Acker was delivering his route, and started up a flight of steps next to Duncan's piano store on South Third street, to leave some mail, when he accidentally ran into a door with a broken glass.

A gash several inches long was cut in his arm, which bled profusely. The injury was dressed by Dr. D. T. Stuart.

FIRST BAD MISHAP OF THE SEASON

Henderson Player Run Over and Disabled.

Sherman Collides with Second Baseman Evans and Breaks Collar Bone and Arm.

IT CRIPPLES UP HENDERSON

The first serious accident to happen at the Wallace Park ball grounds this season occurred yesterday afternoon when Sherman, of the Paducah team, while running a base, collided with Wallace Evans, Henderson's second baseman, who was knocked down and his left collar bone and arm broken in the fall.

Evans was standing on the base line and Sherman, who is the fastest runner in the league, was coming full tilt. Catcher Pat Downing threw to second and Evans, in taking the throw, did not take the precaution to get off the base line and was struck.

Evans was knocked down and when he got up staggered a few times, grabbed his shoulder and then fell to the ground. A hasty examination showed him to be seriously injured and Dr. Jeff Robertson, who was in the grand stand, came forward and administered to the injured man. He was taken to town and the extent of the injuries learned.

The injured man is from Louisville. He had been playing in the Connecticut league but did not make good, later coming to Henderson to substitute for Reddick, who was injured two weeks ago by having his knee cap "jammed."

This accident will cripple Henderson, in a measure, as Reddick is not able to play good ball in his present condition, and Evans will be out of the game at least three weeks or a month. He was taken to Henderson last night to be cared for.

Some of the Henderson players are disposed to feel sore over the accident, but Sherman's action was legitimate, and he had no intention of injuring the other player. It is regretted that the accident happened, but it is likely to happen in any game where the players do not observe the rules, and block base runners. It is claimed that if one player refrained through fear of hurting him from knocking another player out of the way when he is blocking him contrary to rules, there would be too many players willing to take advantage of it and purposely block runners, knowing that they would go around them, and thus lose time or be put out.

DR. BRIGGS EXPLAINS

He Denies That His Name has Been Dropped.

Displays a Letter Seeking His Trial Service for Some Future Day.

Dr. George Waverly Briggs denies that on account of his inability to preach during the three past Sundays at the Franklin avenue Congregational church at Cleveland, the officials of that church have refused to further consider him for the pastorate, says yesterday's Louisville Courier-Journal. In support of his denial, he submitted a letter which he received only yesterday from Cleveland, and in which his trial service was sought for on some near future day.

Several weeks ago the Rev. Dr. Briggs, who had just returned from an extensive lecture tour, received a communication from the officials of the Franklin avenue Congregational church of Cleveland, asking him if he would not come to the church and preach four sermons, as the membership of the church was considering him for the pastorate. Without consulting his physician, Dr. R. B. Gilbert, under whose care the minister was at the time Dr. Briggs accepted the invitation.

On June 4 Dr. Briggs was to have delivered his first sermon at Cleveland, but on account of the serious illness of his child, he sent a communication to the church that explained his absence, and in which he added that he would surely be with them on the following Sunday. In the meantime his physician learned of his intended work at Cleveland and at once told Dr. Briggs that his health would not permit of anything except rigid restraint from all forms of mental exertion. Accordingly, the pastor was obliged again to cancel his engagement for June 11. As there was no improvement in his general health during the next week, Dr. Briggs' physician then wrote the elders of the Cleveland church and explained the exact circumstances of the state of affairs.

STILL DOUBT

AS TO THE TAX ON POOL AND BILLIARD TABLES.

Frankfort, Ky., June 22.—Attorney General Hays has given Auditor Hager a written opinion holding that the failure of the general assembly to incorporate in the revenue law of 1902 the provision of the old law placing a tax of $80 and $20 on billiard and pool tables does not invalidate that old provision, but that it is still in effect and that the taxes or license can be collected.

The discovery that the provision had been left out of the revenue law of 1902 was made only a few days since. It was a part of the revenue laws of 1886 and of 1899, but an oversight was left out of the law drafted in 1902. The repealing clause of the law of 1902 repeals all acts in conflict with it, but Attorney General Hays does not think this repeal a section of the old law not referred to at all in the new law. The question will likely go into the courts for adjudication through the refusal of the operator of such tables to pay the license taxes sought to be collected.

KILLING AT MARION

PROMINENT CITIZENS MEET AND BEGIN SHOOTING.

Marion, Ill., June 22.—On the public thoroughfare near the entrance of Southerly's cafe there occurred possibly the ending of two lives. For several days there has existed a bitter personal enmity between James Meredith and John Barth, both prominent. By chance they met at the entrance. Both commenced firing, exchanging two shots each. Meredith was instantly killed and Barth was not hit. Both parties are influential and many may be drawn into the trouble.

The Local Offerings 400 Hog-heads This Week.

Mayfield Market Is Also Strong and Active with 500 Offerings.

The local tobacco buyers who attended the Graves county market at Mayfield yesterday, returned this morning to buy here. Mayfield offerings this week are large, yesterday the warehouse people offering something like 500 hogheads with sales amounting to 450 hogheads. Prices on logs ranged from $3 to $3.75 and leaf brought from $4 to $7.

The local market will also be large, the offerings amounting to about 400 hogheads. The market is weekly getting stronger and the buyers are taking all the good leaf offered. The prices here will also be strong. The Graves county warehouse people will hold another sale Friday.

TEN NEW ONES

Initiated Last Night by the Car Men.

Trades Council to Hold Its Next Meeting Next Monday.

The Brotherhood of Railway Car-men met last night and had a rousing good time.

There were ten applications for admittance into the brotherhood filed and three new members were initiated. The carmen have nearly three hundred members and host of the biggest order of its kind in this end of the state.

The railway trades council will hold its next meeting Monday night which will be succeeded by the meeting of the carmen and other separate trades. The council is open to all trades and every matter pertaining distinctly to railroad work will be discussed in the meetings. The railroad employees think the council will prove a great success.

MODEL SCHOOL

ONE IN TEXAS AS CHRIST WOULD HAVE IT.

Philadelphia, Pa., June 22.—A model university, planned as they believe Christ would have it, with the Bible as the principal text-book, is to be established by the educational board of the Presbyterian church, at the city of McKinney, Texas. It is understood, within a few months.

An announcement was made of the plan this morning at Oxford Presbyterian church by Rev. William H. Cleaggett of Texas, in the course of a sermon on "Some Features of the Ideal Christian University of the Twentieth Century."

Already a charter has been applied for, he said, and $157,000 of the necessary $200,000 with which to start work upon the building has been raised or subscribed for. The remaining $53,000, the educational committee having the plan in charge expect to raise by September, when options will immediately be given.

The founding of the local university is but a part of a general plan to establish three others in different sections of the country, the intention being to educate young men and women more thoroughly in the higher principles of religion than is attempted in the strictly secular college. Forty acres will be occupied by college buildings; sixty acres will be given over to athletic grounds while the remaining 100 acres will be beautifully laid out and residences erected thereon. Over the gateway will be carved the answer to the first question of the catechism, "Man's Chief End to Glorify God."

THE DROUTH

Crops Have Been Somewhat Delayed By It.

Harvesting of Some of the Wheat Has Begun.

The following summary of crop conditions in Kentucky, issued by the Weather Bureau, is as follows:

"The temperature averaged a little below the normal during the week. Showers occurred in some localities, but there was generally a deficiency in rainfall."

"The harvesting of wheat has begun in the western section and will be general over the state by the end of this week if the weather is favorable. The acreage is less than usual, but the yield promises to be fairly good and equally first class."

"Tobacco is growing well, but there is much more to be set, especially in the western portion of the state. The acreage is considerably less than usual."

"Corn is in good condition, but the nights have been too cool for rapid growth. It has been quite thoroughly cultivated and shows good color, but is rather small."

"Oats have improved, but are heading out low. Rye is in good condition."

"Meadows are generally in fair condition, with the exception of timothy, which generally is poor. Pastures afford good grazing, but are needing rain."

"Gardens are doing well and Irish potatoes are very fine. There is some complaint of apples dropping, and as they were very thin on the trees in many places, this will lower the yield considerably. Peaches are doing well. They are very irregular, some localities reporting a heavy crop and others none at all. Blackberries are quite promising."

"Hemp looks quite promising and millet is doing well."

"Farm work is well up, except the setting of tobacco; this is delayed by the lack of rain."

"While nothing has been injured by drouth, nearly all crops are beginning to show the effects of the dry weather."

Since the above report was compiled good rains have fallen in many parts of the state, thereby relieving the crops to a great extent.

COURT OVER

JUDGE W. M. REED CONTINUES TO BREAK RECORDS.

Judge William Reed returned yesterday afternoon from Benton after winding up the Marshall circuit court.

Judge Reed dispatched the business of that court very quickly and tolerated no lagging. The attorneys here and at Benton now understand Judge Reed's methods and as a rule come up promptly with all papers necessary in their cases.

Judge Reed, accompanied by Attorney D. H. Hughes, left at noon for Louisville to attend the state bar association meeting. They were the only Paducah attorneys attending.

DYNAMITING FISH

GAME WARDEN AT HENDERSON ASKED TO MAKE INVESTIGATION.

Evansville, Ind., June 22.—Numerous complaints have been made recently that people along Green river, near its mouth, are dynamiting fish, and the authorities here have called the attention of the violations to Kentucky officials. Almost every day boat loads of fish are brought here from Green river and sold to the local dealers. The fish look bloodshot, and a local fisherman who saw a boat load says he is sure the fish were dynamited. The game warden at Henderson, Ky., has been asked to look into the matter. Recently there were several arrests in Ohio county, Kentucky for the violation of the fish laws.

BLOOD POISONED

It will bring happiness to thousands who are miserably suffering here from blood poisoning.

I was taken down last fall with specific blood poisoning. I lay in doctor's care for five months, but nothing seemed to help me. I had sores on my arms, legs and back and was desperate. When a friend dared me to try a bottle of your remedy. I did so. The first on duced some results, so tried another and another till I used eight in all, was absolutely cured. Am now as sound as a dollar. If anyone blood poisoning, for God's sake have them try Foerg's. It will cure them.

S. G. GLENN, Crider, Ky.

It has been proven beyond the possibility of a doubt that this medicine quickly cleans up worst cases of specific blood poisoning and all blood affections. Its work seems astonishing, and almost miraculous. Its actual record reads like a story of magic. But there is no room for doubt about it whatever. Full proofs, indisputable in every respect, we can submit regarding details of cases—among them the case spoken of in this letter. The results are not only of a permanent nature, but permanent. In this case of Mr. S. G. Glenn, it is now over one year since the disease was cleared out of the blood and no trace of it has appeared since.

This is not merely a commercial matter, it is a matter of humanity to tell everybody with a blood disease about this medicine. Among the many cases proven of and shingly quick and complete cures, all of which seem to have been permanent, many were photographed in such a condition that a reproduction in a newspaper would be perhaps too shocking for publication. Not a newspaper in Christendom but should publish every word of this information, if duty and not dollars were the governing rule.

With the above information before you if you go on suffering from the curse of blood poisoning, either primary, constitutional or as a result of mercurial treatment, don't wait at fate but simply buy yourself, for here is a cure—absolute and sure. Tainted blood manifests itself in the form of Scrofula, Eczema, Rheumatic Pains, Stiff or swollen Joints, Eruptions or Copper-colored Spots on the Face or Body, Little Ulcers in the Mouth or on the Tongue, Sore Throat, Swollen Tonsils, Falls out of the Hair or Eyebrows, and finally a Leprosy-like Decay of the Flesh and Bones. If you have any one of these symptoms don't delay till too late but go to your druggist and get a bottle of

GET DOWN TO BUSINESS.

The board of public works, if it controls the matter, should order the new market house and city hospital, as well as a part of the streets, built this year, and begin preparations for the work in order to have everything ready when the bonds are sold and the money is on hand. It requires money to do the work, but not to get ready for it, and if somebody doesn't get busy, the first thing we know the bonds will be sold, the money ready, and the city will be no nearer a start than now.

In regard to the city hospital, a site should be selected, the plans adopted, bids advertised for and the contract let. Then when the money is secured work can be started at once. Something should also be decided about when to build the market house, and if it is decided to build this year, the plans selected and the contract let. Then this too, would be ready. No one seems to understand why the market house should not be built this year. The general public, so far as can be learned from expressions on all sides, wants it as soon as possible, and there is no apparent advantage in delay. It is generally understood that all these improvements can't be made without money, but it is equally as plain that it costs nothing to get ready for them, so when the money is ready everything else will be.

Mr. Bryan said in his New York speech: "The great question this year is not the money question, but it is whether we are to have a plutocracy or a democracy. My own position has been, and will be, that I shall not attempt to decide upon the availability of Mr. Hearst or others. All I ask is that we have a man on whom there is not the taint of monopoly. Parker stands for nothing." Mr. Bryan, however, needn't worry about the kind of government we are going to have. The Republicans are now at Chicago arranging it for the next four years. Mr. Bryan will be able to continue his stirring, speechmaking, newspaper circulation and other easy and successful forms of separating the people from their money, which have been successful under the present Republican administrations during the eight years since the people of the United States first declined to allow him to reside in the white house, and he should be satisfied. He is a harmless wonder, who, like measles or mumps, we might as well be patient with until its course is run.

One of Louisville's prosecuting attorneys is complaining about violations of the child labor law. He says: "The idea of forcing twelve and thirteen year old children to support their families is monstrous, and must be stopped. Numbers of children of these tender ages are now employed in woolen mills and other factories in the city, despite the law against their employment without special permits from the county judge." This angers the question, what has become of the state factory inspector. How many times has he been in Paducah in the past year, if at all? This is the biggest manufacturing city in the state outside of Louisville, and if he is not seeing to the enforcement of the law here or in Louisville, what is he doing to earn his salary.

Some of the Democrats of McCracken county are beginning to shy at machine rule, but they might as well become doxies and take their medicine. They have been up against the machine rule of party organization before, and as the issue in the recent Democratic county convention was purely machine and anti-machine, and the machine won, it is presumed the latter is preparing to take charge. In regard to an early county primary, a large majority of the unopposed candidates want an early one, and are backed by a majority of the county committeemen. If those who oppose are in the majority they have not so demonstrated.

Before the city undertakes to get any more "parks" it should make some provision to take care of those it now owns. Yeiser park is a disgrace to civilization and "Lang" park resembles the frazzled end of the present administration three years hence. Neither would be recognized as a park by any person outside of a lunatic asylum. There has for years been a splendid opportunity for the city to fit up and make attractive Yeiser park, or the court house yard, which is easily reached and large enough to meet all present demands, but the city has refused even to keep it clean.

The city's past experience with outside lawyers should teach it to stick to its own legal advisor. Let him render desired opinions, collect all money claimed by the city if it is legally due and not paid, and bring all suits for the city. Too many cooks spoil the broth.

It is perhaps only once in four years that so many representative men as those who are now in Chicago. They are the flower of the nation, and practically direct the destinies of eighty million people, a majority of whom they are sent to Chicago to represent.

The release of the captives in Tangier is still delayed. The bandits' next move will probably be to demand interest on the ransom.

The Mayfield Messenger says that "Judge Bagg was very plain in giving instruction to the jury." Maybe he forgot to wear his Sunday clothes.

AT LONE OAK

PRINCIPAL ELECTED FOR THE ENSUING YEAR.

The stockholders in the college at Lone Oak last night held a meeting and re-elected Prof. J. S. Ragdale superintendent for the coming year. The superintendent makes his own selections of teachers. The place held by Miss Emma Morgan who accepts a position in the city schools, has not yet been filled. Mr. C. M. Ross was elected collector for the college.

TO OUST LUCAS.

Attorney James Campbell, Jr., has been appointed auditor's agent to succeed Agent Frank Lucas, who will probably challenge the authority of Auditor Hager to remove him by refusing to vacate. Attorney Lucas, together with other agents appointed by Former Auditor Gus Coniter, claim that he was appointed for four years. He is now up in the state somewhere, and could not be seen to ascertain what he intends to do.

FAIR PROMOTERS

Consulting Merchants.

If They Receive Sufficient Encouragement They Will Give a Fair Here.

TO KNOW BY TOMORROW

Judge Given and Mr. James Franceway, of Madisonville, promoters for the Hopkins Fair association, are in the city today conferring with merchants to see what support they will receive if they give a fair here this summer.

These gentlemen were here several weeks ago looking over the field and were undecided what they would do. At the previous visit they received little encouragement from the merchants but this time expect to interest the business men.

They will remain here until tomorrow and will know by then whether or not they will include Paducah in their circuit. They have been in conference with Dr. S. B. Caldwell, owner of the fair ground, this morning but made no definite arrangement for the fair grounds and will not until they reach some definite decision.

Governor Beckham and the state capitol commissioners passed through the city last evening at 6 o'clock on route to Jackson, Miss., to inspect the state capitol building, and were met at the train by Senator J. Wheeler Campbell and several other prominent local politicians.

The governor and party traveled in a private L. & N. car and remained here only five minutes. There were quite a number of spectators at the depot to see the governor and the depot presented a livelier appearance than in many days.

The members of the state capitol commission were accompanied by their wives. The party will return to Kentucky on Friday. Lieutenant Governor Thorne will occupy the executive chair in the absence of the governor.

Colonel Thorne did not arrive at the capitol until yesterday afternoon, being detained at his home on legal business.

BAD IDEA

PADUCAH IS FIXING TO GET CRIPPLED FOR CAIRO.

Local fans are this afternoon voicing their displeasure over the prospective double-header with Vincennes tomorrow, an off day. It is proposed to use up two pitchers in the effort to beat the Hoosiers, which may leave the team crippled for the series with Cairo.

It is reported that it is proposed to pitch both Freeman and Bralio tomorrow if the double-header is played, leaving no one to pitch against Cairo except McGill or Brady, both of whom are sick, or possibly Gerard, who has not pitched any this year.

THE INDIANA BOYS
LONG FOR KENTUCKYThe 160th Indiana to Hold A Reunion Soon

And It Wants the Members of Company K, Third Kentucky, to Attend.

A CORDIAL INVITATION

The Sun has received a message from former members of company K, Third Kentucky regiment, which participated in the Spanish American war. The Paducah boys are invited to Indiana to visit the Hoosiers, as will be seen by the following:

Decatur, Ind., June 20, 1904.

Editor—Having been informed that company K of the Third Kentucky volunteers, Spanish-American war, came from your town I wish you would put a notice in your paper for me. The Third Kentucky and 160th Indiana having been thrown much together and fighting one another's battles, the two regiments became great friends. Whenever we have a reunion the boys always wish the boys of the Third Kentucky were present. This year the reunion of the 160th Indiana will be held at Decatur, Ind., Thursday, August 11, and we extend a hearty invitation for all the members of the company from your town to be present. Hoping that you will give us a good space and write up, I remain, very respectfully,

F. S. VAUGHN,

Sec. Co. B, 160th Ind.

P. S.—We would like to see as many as possible come. Let them write a letter any way. F. S. V.

It is possible that a camp of Spanish-American war veterans will be organized in Paducah, where there are nearly one hundred who saw service in the Spanish-American war, some of them in Cuba, some in Porto Rico and others in the Philippines. Lieutenant Percy Jordan has received a communication from W. W. Morris, assistant adjutant general for Kentucky, asking that steps be taken to organize in Paducah. There are now over 600 camps in the United States, and 160,000 members. It is not yet definitely known whether any steps will be taken to organize here or not.

WOULD COME HERE

IF PADUCAH HAD A BUILDING LARGE ENOUGH FOR CONVENTION.

Mr. W. G. McFadden will return about Saturday to McMinnville, Tenn., after a visit here and attending the Kentucky-Tennessee photographers association at Lexington, Ky. The association will meet next year at McMinnville, Tenn. Mr. McFadden could land one of the conventions for Paducah if there was any place here large enough to hold it. There is none at present, however. Mr. McFadden has occupied a prominent position in the association since it was organized, and has been desirous of bringing it to his home town, but sees no possibility of it for several years yet.

Alderman Gus Singleton will introduce a resolution tomorrow night in the board of aldermen meeting to have committees appointed from the two boards to co-operate with a committee of citizens and take options on plots of ground suitable for public parks. It is desired to have parks on the North Side, in Mechanicsburg, and in the vicinity of the Union depot, and the alderman believes it can be done for $10,000.

How the Old Gentleman
Prepared His Son's Future

"I FEEL it my duty to inform you," said the lawyer, "that the suit you propose seems to me ill advised."

"Why?" demanded the wealthy client.

"Well," replied the lawyer, "you can undoubtedly compromise the matter now for more than you will realize at the end of a lawsuit after deducting the expenses. The case will be bitterly fought."

"So much the better," said the client. "It is one of the kind that, with appeals and other delays, may string out for twenty years or more."

"So much the better," repeated the client.

"Your opponent has the money to fight, and he will go the limit when the light is once begun. He's the kind of a fellow who neither forgets nor forgives when he once gets into action."

"So much the better," said the client again.

"The case will outlast you, almost to a certainty," insisted the lawyer. "The litigation will still have life when you have none."

"That's why I'm going into it," said the client. "I presume you know that I have a son."

"Yes."

"That boy has got to have occupation."

"I don't understand you."

"I want to give him something to do. He never has done anything, and he never will do anything unless the job is forced upon him. Too much idleness is bad for a young man."

"He should have something that will take his mind off his clothes, chorus girls and society occasionally. My plan is to leave Herbert well tangled up in this lawsuit for his own good. Of course it won't be much of an occupation, but there will be enough work in it to keep his mind from rusting entirely, and, knowing the boy and the circumstances as I do, it seems to be the only hope. So go ahead and start the fight."—Chicago Post.

The Family's Religion.

Stopping by the roadside, the good man engaged in conversation with the barefooted boy who had been endeavoring to climb up the apple tree.

"Tell me, my child," said the good man, "whether you ever go to Sunday school?"

"Sometimes, when they ain't no use, goli' fishin'."

"Ah! Is your mother a regular communicant in any church?"

"No. She's a Baptist."

"Um! Is your father leading a Christian life?"

"Not just now. That's him down in the field there leadin' that red bull."—New York Herald.

Had Not Changed.

"Oh, uncle! You said that if I would wait here until you came back you wouldn't be long."

"Well, what about it?"

"But you are just as long as you were before."

When Papa Called In.

"Bertha, why am I like a fisherman?" he asked softly as he reached for his hat.

"I don't know, darling," she whispered as she gently pulled the lapels of his coat together. "Why are you, Egbert?"

"Because I never go without my snook."

"No, sir," exclaimed a bull-like voice. "and you shan't go without it tonight either. You shall have it now, sir—a whole fleet of snooks."

And papa proceeded to lay that fleet of snooks on, while Egbert became a full blown skipper.—Spure Moments.

Proper Place For It.

Mrs. Stubbs—So you took a snapshot of a dozen couples courting on the porch. What are you going to do with the picture?

Mr. Stubbs—Hang it in the dining room.

Mrs. Stubbs—Is that an appropriate place?

Mr. Stubbs—Certainly. Isn't it a collection of "spoons"—Philadelphia Record.

A Sympathetic Nature.

"Young man," said the employer sternly, "you misinformed me when you said yesterday that you wanted to get away to go to a funeral."

"Well," answered the youth who had seen the home club defeated, "it wasn't exactly a funeral. But it was almost as sad."—Washington Star.

Brightening the Paper.

Bangs—Wonder what there was in the paper today about Masterson?

Grimes—Didn't know there was anything.

Bangs—Oh, there must have been! He was saying to me that today's issue was unusually interesting.—Boston Transcript.

MR. GEO. A. HUGHES

SAYS:

"I FEEL AS GOOD
AS I DID AT 20."

Mr. Geo. A. Hughes.

Many Suffer With Catarrh and Don't Know It.

The Phase of Catarrh Most Prevalent in Summer is a Run Down, Worn Out Condition Known as Systemic Catarrh.

"Peruna is the Medicine for the Poor Man."

Mr. Geo. A. Hughes, 528 Mass. Ave., Indianapolis, Ind., writes: "Peruna has done me more good than anything I have ever taken. I am forty-five years old now, and feel as good as I did at 20. I was very thin and run down, but Peruna acted just right in my case. I am a carpenter and sometimes need a tonic. Peruna is the medicine for a poor man."

A Congressman Uses Peruna in His Family.

Hon. Thos. J. Henderson, Member of Congress from Illinois, and Lieutenant in the Union Army for eight years, writes from the Leavitt building, Washington, D. C., as follows:

"Peruna has been used in my family with the very best results and I take pleasure in recommending your valuable remedy to my friends as a tonic and an effective cure for catarrh."

---Thos. J. Henderson.

Catarrh assumes different phases in different seasons of the year. In the early summer systemic catarrh is most prevalent. That tired, all worn out feeling in nine cases out of ten is due to a catarrhal condition of the mucous membranes. Peruna cleanses the mucous membranes and cures the catarrh wherever located.

There are no remedies for catarrh just as good as Peruna. "Accept no substitutes."

If you do not derive prompt and satisfactory results from the use of Peruna, write at once to Dr. Hartman, giving a full statement of your case, and he will be pleased to give you his valuable advice gratis.

Jokes About Married Men and Their Wives

MRS. SPOUSER—John, didn't I hear you slipping upstairs at 4 o'clock this morning?

MR. SPOUSER—Not on your life! That was when I slipped down after crawling half way up.—Butte Inter-Mountain.

Mrs. Jilson—Isn't it just too disgusting to hear that Mr. Jilson call his wife angel.

Old Jilson—To him she is, theatrically speaking, for she has all the money.—Cleveland Leader.

Wife—John, you've been drinking. Oh, I can tell!

Husband—Well, don't do it, dear. Let's keep it a family secret.—Philadelphia Press.

"Did your wife say you might come out this evening?"

"She said nothing of the kind. I didn't go home to supper."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Husband in Waiting—I must take you to see the woman lighting change artist at the halls.

Wife—Is she good?

Husband—Great! She puts on her hat in less than fifteen minutes.

Mrs. De Style—Do you still adore me, George?

Mr. De Style—Didn't I stop reading the baseball news to hear about your new waist?

The Flight of Time.

Aunt Kizzy has held for many years the responsible office of general supervisor of the children in the family of her mistress, and when the numerous duties of the nursery were assigned to a younger woman she still retained what she considered the high privilege of escorting the smaller children to the Sunday school and occupying the seat behind them while they were receiving instruction. One Sunday afternoon the teacher told in detail the story of the crucifixion, and in her effort to impress the little ones with every circumstance which their young minds would be likely to retain she said solemnly, "Now, remember, children, all this happened—really happened—just thirteen hundred years ago."

Aunt Kizzy, who was as well acquainted with the teacher as she was with the mistress whose slave she had been for so many years, looked up with a most patronizing smile and exclaimed, "Law-a-mussy, Miss Holly, how time do fly!"—Lippincott's Magazine.

Lacked Experience.

"Mother—Don't you let me catch you in a lie again, you naughty boy!"

Charlie—I won't if I can help it. But then I haven't had the experience that pa has had.

Easy For an Expert.

"Hab!" said Sherlock Holmes, Jr., after shaking hands with his host and taking a hasty glance at the other guests. "Your wife is jealous of you!"

"By George, Holmes, you're a wonder. I've never told a soul about it, and I don't believe she has. How did you find it out?"

"Merely one of my wonderful deductions, my dear sir. It's very simple. I see she has invited only old ladies and homely ones."—Chicago Record-Herald.

Knew Them All.

"And I say it's a good fish, mmm," tartly asserts the marketman. "I don't believe you know anything about fish."

"Sir," exclaims the young housekeeper, "you should know your place!"

"That I do, mmm, and nobody can't tell me I don't. I know my place and my whitish and my trout—I know the whole blooming lot, mmm, and has known them for years."

But the door had been slammed.—Chicago Tribune.

A Successful Method.

"Senator Dewey," said the reporter, "I am getting up an article on 'How Men Propose.' Would you mind telling me something of your apparent successful method?"

"Certainly," replied the genial senator. "Same method as I employ in my after dinner speeches. Stick to the old, old story."—Town Topics.

Too Particular.

Employment Agent—What was the matter with your last place?

Domestic—The mistress was too particular.

"In what way?"

"She wouldn't let me look th' baby in th' foldin' bed w'en I had company."

Just For Show.

"She behaves in such a silly way over her dance, the count. She always calls him 'dear' in public."

"Oh, it's just a bluff. As a matter of fact, he was comparatively cheap; only cost her further a paltry million."—Philadelphia Press.

The Meaning of Love as Viewed by Specialists

"WHAT is love?" was the burning question asked by the company of humors.

"Love," said the landlady, "is that power, so subtle as to defy analysis, which draws two people together who cannot afford to be apart and enables me to fill my third story front."

"Love," said the society woman, "is the alliance of two families in such a manner as to produce the fewest offspring and then cut the greatest swath."

Said the psychologist: "Love is that set of sensations which, finding their way through the afferent nerves, stimulate certain ganglionic centers of the occipital portion of the brain and extend upward through the higher areas of cerebral consciousness. It is purely subjective in its action, and, while it has no regular synthesis, being extremely diverse in all of its aspects, it seems to be subject to some higher deductive law as yet undetermined."

Said the college graduate, "Love is the supreme folly."

Said the octogenarian, "Love is eternal."

Said the theologian, "Love is that divine force coexistent with Jehovah which has dwelt in the hearts of men since the shepherds have watched their flocks and which enables us to force every one to believe in our own particular views, even if we have to do it at the edge of the sword."

Said the actress, "Love is an angel— with plenty of money."

Said the bachelor, "Love is an amusement."

Said the married man: "Love is the dearest thing in the world. It's the only thing that prevents me from living within my income."

Said the widow, "Love is constant in its change."

Said the dressmaker: "Without love I should go out of business. Love pays all my bills."—Tom Masson in New York Life.

What a Bull is For.

Marie and her little brother Phil were standing on the porch looking into a neighboring pasture, where there was an unusually fierce and unruly Jersey bull.

"I wonder," said Phil speculatively, "what a bull is for anyway? He don't give milk."

"Why," said Marie from the depths of her elder sister experience, "that's not hard to tell. He is meant to keep folks out of the pasture, to be sure!"—Lippincott's Magazine.

A Familiar Linguist.

Farmer Spud—The only Greek I know is to know the name of the secret society he belongs to, while the Russian words he rattles off, he says, are the college yells.—Boston Journal.

He Told Her the Worst.

"Doctor," said the beautiful young woman who had become the wife of a rich old man, "tell me the worst. I will be brave and try to bear it."

Lending her gently from her suffering husband's bedside, the doctor answered:

"Nerve yourself then for a terrible shock. He's going to get well."—Chicago Record-Herald.

His Diagnosis.

"How is your friend the poet?"

"Much worse."

"Much worse? I didn't know he had been sick."

"Hasn't. He's been writing, though."—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

His Specialty.

"I don't believe that office boy of yours will ever be able to see through a grindstone."

"Well, he can see through a knothole in a baseball fence all right."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

A Modern Truth.

"Of course, you know," said Kwofer, "that a word to the wise is sufficient."

"Yes," replied Headley, "and if it's a Russian word the wise man won't attempt to pronounce it."—Philadelphia Press.

Church—And you say he is calm in the face of danger?

Gotham—Calm's no word for it. Why, when his wife gets after him he never says a word!—Yonkers Statesman.

Almost the Same Thing.

"I understand you were carried away by her singing."

"Well, not quite that. I was driven away by it, though."—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

"Br'er Williams, kin you pronounce de names er dem Russian girlns?"

"No, sari. I got false teeth on de bottom on my two on top."—Atlanta Constitution.

His Little Joke and How It Affected Her

"I CALLED on Perkins last evening," remarked Mr. Brown.

"Did you have a pleasant time?" Inquired Mrs. Brown.

"Very. Perkins was beating his wife when I went in."

"What?"

"I say, Perkins was beating his wife, but of course he stopped when I went in."

"Well, I should hope so."

"I begged him to go on, but he said some other time would do just as well."

"You begged him to go on?"

"Why, yes. I didn't want to spoil the fun, you know."

"Oh, you brute!"

"Eh?"

"Do you mean to say that you could have looked on while he beat his wife?"

"Certainly. Why not?"

"I thought you had at least a spark of manhood left. I suppose you will be beating me next?"

"Yes. I think I could if you would play cribbage with me."

"Play cribbage?"

"Yes. That is what Perkins and his wife were doing."

"You horrid thing!"

Imperative Orders.

There has recently joined the First City troop a raw recruit with whom the other members of that organization have been having a good deal of fun. Among other defects the new recruit had never been on a horse in his life, and the drill was anything but a recreation to him.

"Now, men," said the officer in charge of his squad the other day at drill, "nobody is allowed to discount without orders from a superior officer—remember that!"

The recruit, however, was no sooner in the saddle than he was hurled head over head through the air and came down to the ground so hard that the breath was almost knocked out of him.

"Here, you!" shouted the sergeant when he discovered the new recruit spread out on the ground. "You dismounted!"

"I did," said the R. R.

"Did you have orders?"

"I did, sir."

"From headquarters, I suppose?" sneered the sergeant.

"No, sir," said the recruit, "from hind quarters."—Philadelphia Press.

A well known Washington clergyman was in an argument the other day with a good natured old Irishman, who objected seriously to being called Pat, retreating time and again that his name was Patrick, and he was particularly about having it so called.

"Why," said the clergyman, "you should be glad to be called Pat. Remember what a potent factor that name is in the history of Ireland."

"That may be so," said the old fellow, "but my name is Patrick, and Patrick it will be to the end, sir. I can't see where Pat ever had much to do with the history of any country anyhow."

"Well, now," said the clergyman, "I'll prove where you're wrong. I'll tell you the origin of one of the great names of the hour."

A Good Simile.

There is a dear little Philadelphia girl, not yet three years old, who has a distinct dislike for kissing. She likes neither to kiss nor to be kissed. She spent some time at the seashore last summer, and her first day's experience with ocean bathing and her splashing about in the foamy wavelets made a great impression upon her. She thought of everything, as it were, in terms of the sea.

That same evening her older sister put her to bed. But the tot refused the good night kiss.

"Aren't you going to kiss sister good night, Kitty?" asked the older girl.

"No, I'm not, Louise."

SKIN DISEASESThe Outcropping of Bad Blood.

While not always painful these are aggravating beyond expression. With few exceptions they are worse in spring and summer, when the system begins to throw out and the skin is reacting and making great efforts to throw off the poisons that have accumulated during the winter months.

Then boils and pimples, rashes and eruptions of every conceivable kind make their appearance, and Eczema and Tetter—the twin terrors of skin diseases—Nettle Rash, Poison Oak and Ivy, and such other skin troubles as usually remain quiet during the cold weather, break out afresh to torment and distract by their fearful burning, itching and stinging.

A course of S. S. S. now will purify and enrich the blood, reinforce and tone up the general system, and carry off the bodily impurities through the proper channels. The skin, with good blood to nourish it, remains smooth and free of all disfiguring eruptions.

Send for our book on diseases of the skin, and write us if you desire medical advice or any special information. This will cost you nothing.

RAN OFF DRAW

LOCOMOTIVE RAN A SCHOONER —PASSENGERS NARROWLY ESCAPE.

Laurel, Del., June 22.—By an accident which swung under the baggage car, Baggage-master John M. Baluona of the Pennsylvania railroad train leaving Wilmington on the Delaware division saved the lives of 200 passengers.

Salmon uncoupled the train from the locomotive, which plunged through the open draw of the bridge spanning the Laurel river. The engineer, William Courtney, stuck to his post and was killed.

The locomotive plunged down upon the schooner Golden Gate, which was passing under the draw, and sunk it. Three of the schooner's crew are missing. Fireman Walter Pierce jumped as the train approached the bridge and escaped.

The Blazed Trail

By STEWART EDWARD WHITE

Copyright, 1902, by Stewart Edward White

So the young man received his first promotion toward the ranks of skilled labor. He gained at last a field of application for the accuracy he had so intelligently acquired while roadmaking, for now a false stroke marred a saw log; and besides, what was more to his taste, he found himself near the actual scene of operation at the front, as it were.

Here he learned why and when the sawyers threw a tree up down hill, and how small standing timber they tried to tell it through, what consideration held for the cutting of different lengths of log, how the timber was skillfully decked on the skids in such a manner that the pile should not bulge or fall and so that the senior could easily determine the opposite ends of the same log in short, a thousand and one little details which ordinarily a man learns only as the exigencies arise to call for experience. Here, too, he first realized he was in the thing line.

Molly, still upheld by Hubert, looked at him anxiously.

Thorpe had assigned him as a bunk mate the young fellow who assisted Tom Broadhead in the felling. Henry Paul was a fresh complexioned, clear eyed, quick unimpaired young fellow, with an air of steady responsibility about him. He came from the southern part of the state, where during the summer he worked on a little home-stead farm of his own. After a few days he told Thorpe that he was married, and after a few days more he showed his bunk mate the photograph of a sweet faced young woman who looked trustingly out of the picture.

"She's waiting down there for me, and it ain't so very long till spring," said Paul wistfully. "She's the best little woman a man ever had, and there ain't nothing too good for her, chummy."

Thorpe, soon sick after his recent experiences with the charity of the world, discovered a real pleasure in this fresh, clear passion.

Three days after the newcomer had started in at the swamping Paul, during their early morning walk from camp to the scene of their operations, confided in him further.

"Got mother letter, chummy," said he. "Come in yesterday. She tells me," he hesitated, with a blush, and then a happy laugh, "that they ain't going to be only two of us at the farm next year."

"You mean?" queried Thorpe.

"Yes," laughed Paul, "and if it's a girl she gets named after her mother, you bet."

The men separated. In a moment Thorpe found himself waist deep in the pitchy aromatic top of an old bull sap, clapping away at the projecting branches. After a time he heard Paul's gay halloo.

"Timber!" came the cry, and then the swish-shash-crash of the tree's fall.

Thorpe knew that now either Hank or Tom must be climbing with the long measuring pole along the prostrate trunk, marking by means of shallow x clips where the saw was to divide the logs. Then Tom shouted something unintelligible. The other men seemed to understand, however, for they dropped their work and ran hastily in the direction of the voice. Thorpe after a moment's indecision did the same. He arrived to find a group about a prostrate man. The man was Paul.

Two of the older woodsmen, kneeling, were conducting coolly a hasty examination. At the front every man is more or less of a surgeon.

"Is he hurt badly?" asked Thorpe.

"What is dead," answered one of the other men soberly.

With the skill of ghostly practice some of them wore a litter, on which the body was placed. The pathetic little procession moved in the solemn, inscrutable forest.

When the tree had fallen it had crashed through the top of another, leaving suspended in the branches of the latter a long, heavy limb. A slight breeze dislodged it. Henry Paul was impaled as by a javelin. This is the chief of the many perils of the woods.

That evening the camp was unusually quiet. Tuller let his fiddle hang. After supper Thorpe was approached by Purdy, the reptilian redhead with whom he had had the row some evenings before.

"You in, chummy?" he asked in a quiet voice. "It's a five apiece for Hank's woman."

"Yes," said Thorpe.

The men were earning from $20 to $30 a month. They had most of them never seen Hank Paul before this autumn. He had not, mainly because of his modest disposition, enjoyed any extraordinary degree of popularity, yet these strangers cheerfully, as a matter of course, gave up the proceeds of a week's hard work, and that without expecting the slightest personal credit. The money was sent "from the boys."

Thorpe later read a heartbroken letter to the unknown benefactors. It touched him deeply, and he suspected the other men of the same emotions, but by that time they had regained the independence, self contained peace of the frontiersman. They read it with unmoved faces and tossed it aside with a more than ordinarily rough joke or oath. Thorpe understood their reticence. It was a part of his own nature. He felt more than ever akin to these men.

As swamper he had more or less to do with a cant hook in helping the teamsters roll the end of the log on the little "drag." He soon caught the knack. Toward Christmas he had become a fairly efficient cant hook man and was helping roll the great sticks of timber up the slanting skids. Thus always intelligence comes, especially that rare intelligence which resolves into the analytical and the minutely observing.

He was getting just the experience and the knowledge he needed, but that was about all. His wages were $25 a month, which his van bill would reduce to the double eagle. At the end of the winter he would have but a little over $100 to show for his season's work, and this could mean at most only $50 for life. But the future was his. He saw now more plainly what he had dimly perceived before, that for the man who buys timber, and logs it well, a sure future is waiting. And in this camp he was beginning to learn from failure the conditions of success.

CHAPTER VI.

THEY finished cutting on section 17 during Thorpe's second week. It became necessary to begin on section 14, which lay two miles to the east. In that direction the character of the country changed somewhat.

The pine there grew thick on isolated "islands" of not more than an acre or so in extent—little knolls rising from the level of a marsh. In ordinary conditions nothing would have been easier than to have plowed roads across the frozen surface of this marsh. The peculiar state of the weather interposed tremendous difficulties.

The early part of autumn had been characterized by a heavy snowfall immediately after a series of mild days. A warm blanket of some thickness thus overlaid the earth, effectually preventing the freezing which subsequent cold weather would have caused. All the season roadway had contended with this condition. Even in the woods, muddy swamps and spring holes caused endless difficulty and necessitated a great deal of "corduroying," or the laying of poles side by side to form an artificial bottom. Here in the open some six inches of water and unlimited mud awaited the first horse that should break through the layer of snow and thin ice. Between each pair of islands a road had to be "framed."

Thorpe and the rest were put at this disagreeable job. All day long they had to walk mechanically back and forth on diagonals between the marks set by roadway with his snowshoes. Early in the morning their feet were wet by icy water, for even the light weight of a man sometimes broke the frozen skin of the marsh. By night a road of trampled snow of greater or less strength was marked out across the expanse. Thus the blanket was thrown back from the warm earth, and thus the cold was given a chance at the water beneath. In a day or so the road would bear a horse. A bridge of ice had been artificially constructed, on either side of which lay unbounded depths. This road was indicated by a row of first sticks in the snow on either side.

It was very cold. All day long the restless wind swept across the shivering surface of the plains and tore around the corners of the islands. The big woods are as good as an overcoat. The overcoat had been taken away.

When the lunch sleigh arrived the men huddled shivering in the lee of one of the knolls and tried to cut with numb fingers before a fire that was but a mockery. Often it was nearly dark before their work warmed them again. All of the skidways had to be placed on the edges of the islands themselves, and the logs had to be trawled over the steep little knolls. A single misstep out on to the plain meant a mired horse. Three times heavy snows obliterated the roads, so that they had to be plowed out before the men could go to work again. It was a struggle.

Hadway was evidently worried. He often paused before a gang to inquire how they were "making it." He seemed afraid they might wish to quit, which was indeed the case, but he should never have taken before them any attitude but that of absolute confidence in their intentions. His anxiety was natural, however. He realized the absolute necessity of skidding and hauling this job before the heavy chocking snows of the latter part of January should make it impossible to keep the roads open. So insistent was this necessity that he had seized the first respite in the phenomenal snowfall of the early autumn to begin work. The cutting in the woods could wait.

Left to themselves, probably the men would never have dreamed of objecting to whatever privations the task carried with it. Hadway's anxiety for their comfort, however, caused them finally to imagine that perhaps they might have some just grounds for complaint after all. That is a great trait of the lumberjack.

But Dyer, the senior, finally caused the outbreak. Dyer was an efficient enough man in his way, but he loved his own ease. His habit was to stay in his bunk of mornings until well after daylight. To this there could be no objection except on the part of the cook, who was supposed to attend to his business himself, for the senior was active in his work when once he began daylight. To this there could be no objection except on the part of the cook, who was supposed to attend to his business himself, for the senior was active in his work when once he began daylight.

"I don't pose for no tough son of a gun!" said he to Hadway. "And I've got some respect for my ears and feet. Shell warm up a little by tomorrow, and perhaps the wind 'll die. I can catch up to you fellows by hustling a little, so I guess I'll stay in and work on the books today."

"All right," Hadway assented, a little doubtfully.

This happened perhaps two days out of the week. Finally Dyer hung out a thermometer, which he used to consult. The men saw it and consulted it too. At once they felt much colder.

"She was starin' 'n below," spluttered Hapstide Teller, the Frenchman who played the fiddle. "He freeze 'em to hove outside. Dat is too cole for makin' 'n de work."

"Them plains is sure a holy fright," assented Purdy.

"Th' old man knows it himself," agreed Big Nolan.

"Did you see him rammin' around yesterday askin' us if we found her too cold? He knows very well he ought not to keep a man out that sort of weather."

"You'd shiver like a dog in a briar path on a warm day in July," said Jackson illnes contemptuously.

"Shut up!" said they. "You're barn boss. You don't have to be out in the cold."

This was true. So Jackson's intervention went for a little worse than nothing.

"If ain't he has Auntin' besides," went on Hapstide. "He can mak' 'n de out of de middle of de forest."

"That's right," agreed Bob Stratton. "They's the west half of 'eight ain't been out yet."

So they sent a delegation to roadway. Big Nolan was the spokesman.

"Boss," said he bluntly, "she's too cold to work on them plains today. She's the coldest day we had."

Hadway was too old a hand at the business to make any promises on the spot.

"I'll see, boys," said he.

When the breakfast was over the crew were sent to making skidways and traveling roads on "eight." This was a precedent. In time the work on the plains was grudgingly done in any weather. However, as to this roadway proved firm enough. He was a good fighter when he knew he was being imposed upon.

And as the days slipped by he tightened the reins. Christmas was approaching. An easy mathematical computation reduced the question of completing his contract with Morrison & Daly to a certain weekly quota. In fact, he was surprised at the size of it. He would have to work diligently and steadily during the rest of the winter.

Having thus a definite task to accomplish in a definite number of days, roadway grew to be more of a task master. Thus he regained to a small degree the respect of his men. Then he lost it again.

One morning he came in from a talk with the supply teamster and woke Dyer, who was not yet up.

"I'm going down home for two or three weeks," he announced to Dyer. "You know my address. You'll have to take charge, and I guess you'd better let the scaling go. We can get the tally at the banking grounds when we begin to haul. Now, we ain't got all the time there is, so you want to keep the boys at it pretty well."

Dyer twisted the little points of his mustache. "All right, sir," said he, with his smile so insouciantly insolent that Hadway never saw the insolence at all. He thought this a poor year for a man in Hadway's position to spend Christmas with his family, but it was none of his business.

NAPOLEON, As Seen by His Associates

THE LARGENESS OF THE MAN

[Copyright, 1904, by G. L. Kilmer.]

XIII.

NAPOLEON'S largeness of mind and soul is set forth in the pages of memorialists of the period in the strongest terms, even by those whose attitude is, in the main, far from laudatory. With all his faults, Fouché, the notorious minister of national police, was a shrewd judge of men. Writing of Napoleon's fitness as a ruler, he says:

"I was sincerely attached to that man, being fully convinced that there was no one in the career of arms and in the civil order who possessed a character so firm, so persevering—such a character, in short, as was requisite to direct the government and suppress factions."

Monaparte's sudden return from Egypt to Paris to place himself at the head of government brings out this eulogy from Fouché:

"There would have been no great merit in coming to take possession of an immense power which was offered to the most enterprising and of gathering the fruits of an enterprise in which, to succeed, the display of audacity was alone requisite; but to abandon a victorious army, to pass through hostile deserts, to arrive in the very nick of time, hold all parties in suspense and decide for the safest, to weigh, balance and master everything in the midst of so many contrary interests and opposing passions, and all this in twenty-five days, supposes wonderful ability, a firm character and prompt decision."

"Gentlemen, you have a master," was the verdict of Napoleon's chief rival, Sieyes, upon hearing the tyro from the battlefield "treat upon the finances, the administration, the laws, the army, politics in general, and discuss the various subjects with ability."

"I will not," he declared soon after his installation—"I will not govern with the weakness of a debauched chief."

Ten years later, when involved in wars abroad and beset with entails at home, "this extraordinary man," says Fouché, "had not yet lost any of his warlike vigor. His courage and his genius raised him above all his errors."

Mme. de Remusat also calls attention to Napoleon's quick mastery of the larger principles of government. She says:

"The ministerial councils were held on fixed days. There were three state councils a week. For five or six years the emperor frequently presided over them. He frequently astonished his hearers by observations full of luminess and depth on subjects which would have seemed to be quite beyond his reach.

"The intellect of Bonaparte was most remarkable. It would be difficult, I think, to find among men a more powerful or comprehensive mind."

"His intellectual capacity seemed to be vast, from the number of subjects he could take in and classify without fatigue. With him one idea gave birth to a thousand, and a word would lift his conversation into elevated regions of fancy, in which exact logic did not indeed keep him company, but in which his intellect never failed to shine."

It might be thought that Napoleon's ambition was limited solely by the strength of his foes, but when at the height of his power, in 1808, with Germany at his feet, he said to the Austrian minister, Metternich:

"I only wish for direct influence in Europe to the banks of the Rhine and indirectly as far as the Elbe, the Inn and the Isen. The thing is quite simple. I think myself the stronger for not going as far as the Vistula, but keeping myself more concentrated. Prussia will become the strongest power of the second order. I do not desire to extend my influence beyond the natural line I have pointed out to you."

Napoleon's zeal for the honor of France was nothing less than unselfish. During his reign he would allow no insult to be published either against the former kings or against Marie Antoinette or even against the Bourbon claimant, Louis XVIII. No one ever succeeded in gaining his favor by abusing his predecessors or rivals. In a letter to his brother Louis, king of Holland, he said:

"I do not separate myself from my predecessors and regard myself as responsible for them all, from Clovis down to the Committee of Public Safety, and all the harm that is lightly said of governments that have preceded me is said, I consider, with the intention of insulting me. I know it has become the fashion among certain people to praise me and to cry France down, but those who do not love France do not love me, and those who speak ill of my people, I hold them for my bitterest enemies."

"Your majesty will find a brother in me if I find a Frenchman in you. If you forget the feelings which attach you to our common country, you will not think it wrong that I should forget the ties which nature has placed between us."

Menaval, who accompanied Napoleon in the capacity of secretary, says that after inspecting a large factory at Jouy he took the cross of the Legion of Honor from his buttonhole and handed it to the manufacturer, saying:

"Here is my cross. I like to reward services of all kinds to the motherland. Peaceful war made against the enemy in your workshop is no less efficacious than the war waged on battlefields."

To one of his ministers he wrote from the battlefield: "As a general rule, the best way to praise me is to do things which may inspire the nation, the young and the army with heroic feelings."

Napoleon's liberal treatment of vanquished foes is frequently depicted in the annals of his reign, not merely as a phase of gallantry to be expected in a warrior, but as a shining trait in his character. Conspirators who sought his ruin and even his lifeblood and traitors who betrayed his cause were forgiven. Says De Bausset, prefect of the palace, "Once the first feeling of annoyance over, Napoleon always pardoned."

"All that I know of him proves that he possesses a great soul, which quickly forgets injuries," wrote the Duchesse d'Angoulême. In this vein she recalls the words of Napoleon to a minister who handed him the names of a dozen powerful conspirators that had been detected in the work, with the query, "What does your majesty command with respect to this affair?"

"Nothing."

The other looked at him with astonishment and again offered his list, but the emperor smiled and repeated: "Nothing at all, my dear count. I punish my enemies only when their machinations interfere with my projects for the good of my people. It is for that, not because they oppose me, that I punish them. I am less of a Corsican than I am thought."

In the island of Elba, speaking of his possible return to France, the emperor, abandoned and already betrayed by his best friends, exclaimed:

"I will punish nobody! I wish to forget everything!"

And when, on his return to the Tuilleries on March 20, 1815, he received at one and the same time documents signed by these same prefects and officials declaring their adhesion to the restored imperial regime and assurances of fidelity addressed to Louis XVIII., who had taken to flight, the emperor, filled with pity for these ungrateful men, whom he had formerly loaded with favors, contented himself with shrugging his shoulders and saying:

"Just like mankind. One must laugh at them to keep from crying."

And, smiling his action to his words, he replaced about his person the majority of the chamberlains, equestrians and masters of ceremonies who had surrounded him in 1814.

Dwelling upon this phase of human character one day at St. Helena, Napoleon said:

"Let me tell you that a man, he who has the true feelings of a man, never cherishes hatred. His anger or ill humor never goes beyond the irritation of the moment, the electrical stroke. He who is formed to discharge high duties and to exercise authority never considers persons. His views are directed to things, their weight and consequence."

Upon this principle he had acted often during his troubled reign. Mme. de Remusat quotes these words, spoken when face to face with a notorious conspiracy:

"I have no feelings of hatred. I am not capable of acting from revenge. I only sweep obstacles from my path, and, if we were expedient, you should see me pardon Georges Cadoudal tomorrow, although he came simply and solely to assassinate me."

Bourlienne gives a notable instance of Napoleon's moderation in the flush of his victory at Marengo. The defeated Austrian general sent an intermediary to plead with the conqueror for better terms. "Sir," said Napoleon, "carry my final determination to your general. It is irrevocable. I occupy your whole rear. Your finest troops are killed and wounded. I might insist on harder conditions, but I moderate my demands in consideration of the gray hairs of your general."

of Passing Lost Property on the Street

"Mr. Standish came near getting in trouble because he picked up lost property in the street. The articles were really lost, and he honestly found them, but he said work to make anybody believe it. After his second experience he laid down a few rules for his guidance."

"You should find a million dollars up on the sidewalk," she said, "must just walk right past and offer to return one of them to the owner."

"How about keeping a few plunks myself?" asked Standish. "Standish did not smile. 'If that the way you talked to other people accused of theft,' she said, 'I wonder everybody thought you guilty.'"

"Never mind," returned Standish. "I'll all over now. I never expect to see anything again."

and he did not find anything for six months. At last, however, he saw an old cigar case lying in a bypath in the park. He stopped to pick it up. His wife pulled him back.

"Don't!" she cried. "Remember that happened to you twice before." Standish rubbed his cheek ruefully. "I hate like the mischief to let it lie there," he said. "If I don't pick it up somebody else will."

"Very well, let them. If other people choose to go to jail, that is their lookout."

"It's a fine cigar case, all the same," Standish grumbled, as they walked. "It looks a good deal like mine."

"That is all the more reason why you should not meddle. You have no need for two cigar cases exactly alike." Standish stalked along in stubborn silence. When they reached home, he was seized with a sudden craving for a smoke. He felt in one pocket, then in another, for the cigar case.

"Where, in the name of goodness," he began. Then his feet lagged heavily. "Great Scott!" he said. "That cigar case!"

"Dear me!" said Mrs. Standish. "Haven't you got over that yet? What about it now?"

"It was mine. I evidently dropped it the first time we strolled down that path to the lake."—New York Press.

Forbidden Fruit.

A request was once made to the authorities of one of the colleges at Cambridge that room might be found on the spacious lawns of their garden for the lady students of Gliten college to play lawn tennis.

Guessing clearly enough what would be the result of the admission of these students of the fairer sex among the undergraduates, the master replied that it was ordered in the statutes of the college that the gardens must be devoted to the purposes of horticulture and must not be used for husbandry.—Spare Moments.

MUST THE BOARD RECOMMEND FIRST?

A Vexatious Question Involving Important Things.

Board of Public Works Holds a Meeting Tonight—Market House and Street Paving Questions.

OTHER THINGS TO DISCUSS

The board of public works will meet tonight in regular session with much business to transact.

Many matters referred to the board by the council are to be acted on, among them being paving Third street from Kentucky avenue to Broad street and the other the immediate building of a new market house.

It is understood the board is discussing on these two propositions, the board of aldermen voting that the work be delayed until next year and the council ordering it done now.

One thing that is puzzling the board of public works is its exact duties and powers. It is under the impression that no ordinance for public improvements of any kind can be passed until the board of public works has recommended it, although it does not necessarily follow that the legislative boards have to pass ordinances recommended by the board.

The first class charter applying only in Louisville, makes the following provision: 2826: Improvements to be directed by ordinance—no public way shall be opened, narrowed, closed, or constructed, and no sidewalk shall be constructed or reconstructed, and no public wells or cisterns shall be dug or walled, except by ordinance recommended by the board of public works.

There is no similar provision in the second class charter. Mayor Yeiser stated today that he thought the board had to recommend such ordinances before the general council could pass them, but he couldn't show any law for it.

Solicitor Ed Puryear was present when the mayor was asked, and said that it was his opinion, given the board of public works, that the latter has to recommend such improvements before they can be made. When asked for the section of charter on which his opinion was based, however, he said he "didn't have time just then."

Several prominent attorneys who have been investigating the law for clients having interests affected by this question, state that there is no such provision in the second class charter, and that the board of public works in second class cities has only the powers of the "superintendent,"—that of a supervisor or overseer. If the city has a superintendent it cannot have a board of works, and vice versa, and the duties and powers of one or the other are powers of the other.

A great deal of importance attaches to this question, because if the board of public works must recommend improvements before they can be made the market house cannot be built this year, and no streets except those recommended by the board can be paved this year, unless the board recommends it, and the indications are that the board will not recommend that the market house be built this year.

NOTHING DOING

Sheriff Lee Potter has not yet decided whether he will deliver the militiamen ordered to jail to the jailer of McCracken county or not. He has not yet been advised by his attorneys and does not appear to be in any hurry. He will likely make the arrests in the course of a few days, as the sheriffs in other counties have done so.

The local situation is almost a farce. The boys could easily have escaped before now if they wanted to.

Mrs. Fannie Crumpton, of St. Louis, spent a few hours in the city yesterday with Mrs. R. L. Beck, en route to Hopkinsville to visit her mother, Mrs. Ford.

Mrs. W. H. Sallee, of Danville, Ky., who will be pleasantly remembered as Miss Susan Humble will arrive today to visit her sister, Mrs. W. J. Humphrey, 716 Harrison street.

HURT IN CAB

Fireman Struck by a Freight Car at Hsley.

Accident Disabled Him But He Will Recover.

James Langen, fireman on engine 201, pulling passenger train No. 104, which passed Paducah at 1:30 this morning en route east to Louisville, met with a serious accident at Hsley, near Central City, at 3:20 this morning.

Langen was sitting in his cab seat when the train met a box car which was not in the clear, making a slight side swipe. Langen was caught in the cab and his right leg out and his back injured. He was placed on the train and taken to Louisville, his home.

The engine was not badly damaged and the train lost but little time by the accident. The resident physician at Central City dressed the injury and accompanied the patient to Louisville.

BASEBALL

The Paducah colored team will open tomorrow with one of the fastest teams in Tennessee known as the Memphis Monarchs. This team comes highly recommended, as they have defeated Vicksburg, Miss., Dallas, and Houston, Texas, New Orleans, La., and several other fast teams of the south.

They are inclined to think they can take the ginger out of the Paducah boys and as the manager, Jake Redwood, the well known colored sport of Memphis, has been trying to get the two teams together and succeeded at last, so Thursday, Friday and Saturday will tell whether his boys have met any ball players or not.

After closing here with Memphis the Paducah boys will leave Sunday at 2:30 for Nashville for a series of games there, and then return home to meet Chattanooga for three games, then the Paducah boys will be prepared for a thirty days tour in Missouri and Kansas, after which they return to meet Hot Springs, Ark., on Aug. 8, 9 and 10.

Thursday's game will be called at 12:30 on account of the white team playing double header that day, but Friday and Saturday the game will be called at the usual time, 3:30. Part of the grand stand will be reserved for the white people. Perfect order will be maintained.

SAIL IN A BARREL

FELIX TANNER, OF FASTING AND PARACHUTE FAME, PLANS TO OUTFIT ALL OTHER SEA VOYAGES ON RECORD.

Valleyover, N. C., June 22.—To go around the world in a barrel. Such is the latest enterprise of Felix Tanner, of fasting and parachute fame. Mail advices received here from Wellington, N. Z., state that Tanner has built an "ark" with which he proposes to outdo all other sea voyages on record. The marine department of New Zealand has officially surveyed the unique vessel.

The craft in which Tanner is to make his latest bid for fame is barrel shaped and has a stem attached. The barrel is nine feet long by five feet six inches wide. It is hooped with iron. The bow and stern resemble those of an ordinary boat, and are bonded together from end to end, enclosing the body of the freak vessel. There is a pump for use in case of emergency. The floating curiosity will carry a jib and mainsail, with a square fore-sail, and Tanner thinks she should be able to attain fair speed. On the after part of the deck there is a cockpit, from which the barrel boat will be controlled. Tanner declares that he is convinced he can circumnavigate the globe in the barrel. At any rate he will try.

HEALTHY MOTHERS.

Mother should always keep in good bodily health. They owe it to their children. Yet it is no unusual sight to see a mother, with babe in arms, coughing violently and exhibiting all the symptoms of a consumptive tendency. And why should this dangerous condition exist, dangerous alike to mother and child, when Dr. Boschee's German Syrup would put a stop to it at once? No mother should be without this old and tried remedy in the house—for its timely use will promptly cure any lung, throat or bronchial trouble in herself or her children. The worst cough or cold can be speedily cured by German Syrup; so can hoarseness and congestion of the bronchial tubes. It makes expectoration easy, and gives instant relief and refreshing rest to the congested consumptive. New trial bottles 25c; large size 75c. At Dr. Boschee, Kolb & Co.

WOULDN'T LEAVE.

Press Bailey, colored, entered the residence of Mr. W. H. Hudson, of Eleventh and Monroe streets last night and refused to leave.

Mr. Hudson awoke and found the negro standing by his bed. He was ordered several times to leave but refused and finally Mr. Hudson got up and telephoned for the police who arrested the negro and locked him up. Judge Sanders fined him $20 and costs this morning for being drunk and disorderly.
